MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Name: Lindenhurst Memorial Library

Location: Lindenhurst, New York

Membership: SLCP Certified Public Library

Sustainability is the common thread for many interconnected programs at the Lindenhurst Memorial Library.

Throughout the year, harvests from the library's "backyard" garden or indoor tower garden, aptly named Edgar Allan Grow, are creatively incorporated into programming for all age groups. In September, the library put on a pickle-making program.

Patrons sampled fermented pickles made prior by librarians with dill and cucumbers picked from the library's gardens. Afterwards, patrons received the recipe and some fresh dill to take home to create their own jar.

In November, a program for children in grades 3-5 provided the opportunity for participants to harvest chives from the tower garden and sage from the backyard to create their own herb butter.

Another popular program used sage and lavender harvested from the library's gardens to create essential oil rollers.

"I am excited about working with our teen librarian in the spring to bring sustainability to young adult programming," said Adult Services Librarian Kara Thomas. "We recently purchased an herbal infusing machine and plan on using it to make healthy gummy bears with culinary lavender grown on the tower garden."

For the holidays, the library hosted a holiday wreath making workshop in which most materials were foraged from the environment. Adult services librarian Kara Thomas collected greenery trimmed from trees in her own yard, and patrons were encouraged to bring flowers, dried fruit, pinecones, and more to decorate.

Also tying in with the library's tower garden, Kara and another adult services librarian run a quarterly book discussion called "Eat This Book." A memoir or other non-fiction book focusing on food or cooking themes is selected, the librarians make a dish inspired by the book from home-grown ingredients, and patrons are invited to enjoy the food while conversing about the selected title. One example (pictured) was a salade niçoise with library-grown gourmet lettuce inspired by My Life in France by Julia Child.

SLI UPDATES

Upcoming Conferences

New Jersey Library Association Annual Conference

- February 17-19, 2026
- Atlantic City, New Jersey

Come find our booth on the exhibit floor!

Upcoming Webinars

To better serve you, we've curated a series of valuable upcoming sessions. Participants in the certification program may attend some of these sessions to fulfill certain action items. All links to register can be found below.

AI and the Environment

- Thursday, January 22 @ 2:00 pm EST

Join us for an engaging webinar presented by San Diego State University Sciences and Sustainability Librarian Sarah Tribelhorn exploring the environmental impacts of artificial intelligence (AI). This session will provide a foundational overview of AI: what it is, how it works, and how it's increasingly integrated into everyday life. We will then examine the environmental footprint of AI technologies, including energy consumption, data center demands, and electronic waste. Gain insights and practical knowledge to help foster informed conversations with your community about responsible technology use and its role in a sustainable future.
